Rabies Clinic Scheduled By Hamm

The Coffee County Rabies Inspector, Dr. Phillip Hamm, has released a schedule for the community vaccination of pets next week. There is a display ad in this issue of the Clipper listing the time and places for these shots.

Dr. Hamm cautioned pet owners that there have been more rabies reported in Coffee County this year than in many years. According to Hamm, there have been four or five people taking the shots at one time. They were taking them because of a bite from a pet that had been infected with the disease.

Hamm also reminds pet owners that all dogs over three months of age must be vaccinated yearly and wear a tag according to State and County law. This is for the protection of pets, family, children neighbors, livestock and community.

The county - by - county call includes eight from Coffee County.

School Bond Interest Hikes Meet Opposition

There has been a 46.3 per cent hike in the average net interest cost of school bonds since 1963, and in fiscal 1968 the cost of interest for public elementary and secondary school bonds set new records, notes the Tax Foundation, Inc. The average net interest cost of bonds in 1967-68 rose to 4.55 per cent, 1.44 percentage points over the 1962-1963 figure, according to a report of the U.S. Office of Education.

It means that, with almost $3 billion in school construction bonds sold in fiscal 1968, the interest cost the first year after issue will be about $42 million greater than if those bonds could have been sold at the 1963 rate. With the sale of these bonds, the bonded indebtedness of local school agencies rose to an estimated $28 billion—with annual interest payments of about $850 million.

The Office of Education points out that in 1968 in 1,183 of 1,750 public bond issue elections voters approved issues totaling $2.3 billion.

This is $200 million higher than in fiscal 1967, but, as proof of stiffening voter resistance, the rate of approval (based on dollar value) was 62.5 per cent in fiscal 1968 as against 68.2 per cent in fiscal 1967.

Elba policeman Joe Coston is in the Elba General Hospital with a gunshot wound in the leg. Also in the hospital with gunshot wounds is Coston's wife. She has a wound in the upper thigh and in the head.

The Elba police have released no information concerning the incident and other reports vary but apparently the shootings stemmed from a family quarrel Tuesday morning at the Coston home on North Claxton Street, near Cook Chevrolet.

Colleges Urged To Be Wary of Research Funds

The goal of a university should be the genuine education of young people, not the acquisition of more and more research contracts from government and private industry, Dr. Stephen J. Tonsor of the University of Michigan told the National Association of Manufacturers Education Committee at a meeting in Washington recently.

New Sources

"The only sound test is whether or not research enhances or diminishes the primary teaching function of the university," he said. "Governments, Dr. Tonsor said that the ment, business and industry institutions of higher learning should increasingly look to sources other than the university for their pure and applied research."

The speaker also advised against the use of the facilities of the university for the solution of social problems. "So-and-the nation when, and only when, the student is forced to pay a substantial portion by institutions outside the university," he said.
"Foundation grants for centers and programs are often in jeopardy if we do all in our power to encourage students to pay for their education at the institution, where there is through a tax on future earnings clear-cut teaching man," he said.

DON'T YOU READ BEFORE YOU BUY?

Most people do. They count on advertising in print to give them the information they want on products that interest them—information on features . . . designs . . . and prices, for example. People not only read about products and services, they show ads to their family and friends; they clip coupons for information and samples; they tear out ads to take along when they go shopping.

People read an ad because they want to (it's never forced on them). They can even check back later; the message is still there. When you add it all up, print advertising—the kind you read in the pages of this newspaper—makes sense. And because it measures up to the buying habits of consumers, print makes sense.

Most people read and then buy. Don't you?

The Elba Hospital Board was scheduled to open bids on the hospital expansion yesterday (Wednesday). Since this is being written on Tuesday, I have no idea how high the bids will be but everyone is expecting them to be high. The thing that alarms me however, is the fact that these rooms will not be enough. Elba is growing, Medicare begins January 1st and the taxpayers will be ten years paying for this expansion. An ideal setup would be to start actively working on another expansion today (Thursday, July 3rd, 1969). BUT, we ain't got the money. The far sighted hospital board has ideas of what to add in the next expansion and where to add it but I can get no one to even predict when it can begin or how it can be financed. Currently the local hospital is not operated on a profit basis. It is set up to make expenses and with the almost full house every week, that is being accomplished, but, no profit for what private business calls "capital investment." Then if you are in a crowd of three or more when the need for another doctor is mentioned, someone will surely say, "What comes first, the chicken or the egg", which means "hospital rooms or doctor."

Many people are concerned over the nation being controlled by the courts, the military, government, etc. This concern is not quieted by law making actions of the Supreme Court or by the disclosure Tuesday that the Defense Department had spent $400 million on the Safeguard missiles without authorization from Congress. Congress has not even decided to allow the deployment of the Safeguard missiles yet the men trusted - note trusted - to defend us and our homes have spent $400 million of our money simply because they wanted to do it.

I still disagree with those who want to ban the general public from owning guns. Some organization pushing this sent our office a news release recently, telling how many people were killed by guns during the last week. This same argument could be used against cars - look how many people were killed by cars last week - it is a lot more than killed by guns! But probably the reason you can get people to spend money to try to get guns outlawed is that guns are really not necessary to the average person in our present society. If you tried to start a club to ban cars (or drivers) only the nuttiest or nuts would pay the bill for that because the present society depends on the car so heavily, much as our forefathers depended on guns when they were forming our nation.

The federal Truth-in-Lending law went into effect Tuesday. What has puzzled me during the last few weeks is the statements in the daily papers quoting some of these credit folks. They say this law will make credit harder to get. I don't understand this. Sure it will be a lot more work on the lender, but, if us consumers are still willing to pay the same charges we paid last month, they are surely willing to make whatever profit they have figured into their prices and interest rates. As far as being legal, it will be just as legal now as it was last month to charge us 1 1/2% a month on the unpaid balance even if it does figure out to be 15% a year.

I attended the Coffee County Hog Producers annual meeting on Tuesday night. I won't call any names but at the table behind Hedly and me the conversation was on food when one lady stated that she and her husband could not afford anything but coffee for breakfast, in a very loud voice, her husband quickly added, "Hu, it's because coffee is all I know how to cook." Poor fellow having to get his own breakfast. Now if it were me - well I better not make any rash statements.

HOW MUCH DID A COLOR TV COST 25 YEARS AGO?

Since it didn't exist 25 years ago there is no fair way to estimate the cost. The same reasoning applies to the cost of today's prescriptions. Most of today's drugs didn't even exist 25 years ago, so they could not be bought at any price. Washington Report

by GEORGE ANDREWS
Member of Congress
Third District of Ala.

"Each House shall be the judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members."

reads Article I, Section 5, Paragraph 1 of the Constitution of the United States.

The framers of that great document could not have written in clearer terms to define a power of the legislative branch of Government. Nevertheless, the Supreme Court judges, busily engaged in writing their own version of the Constitution, Article I, Section 5 has little meaning.

So it is that Adam Clayton Powell, convicted criminal and traitor to his country, has been elected to the House of Representatives. The fact that Powell is one of them, even though the Court's action, Others have demonstrated enough competence to see the dangers involved.

If the separation of powers guarantee is revoked by the illegal and perverted power grab of the Court's action, the Constitution will be stripped of its significance and destroyed.

The issue involved in the Court's decision is not whether the Harlem Bimini Island Congressman should or should not have been refused a seat by the House, although the decision to exclude him was certainly right and just. The issue is one of grave importance — did the Court have any power to even consider the matter in the first place? The Constitution clearly and emphatically says it did not.

I shall not be a party to giving Powell one cent back pay or one more day of seniority, and I seriously doubt that the House will accommodate Powell and the Court either. In the interest of the survival of Constitutional government, the Legislative Branch must not yield an inch in the matter.

To correct the inequity in our tax laws, I have introduced H. R. 12378 which would amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 to provide the same tax on public highways on July 1 when the new schedule is put into effect, or put into effect during July, have to file a return by September 15.

Walk Extra Mile To Lose Weight

Want to lose ten pounds in the next year?

One way you can do it is to walk an extra mile every day.

The American Medical Association's health book, "Today's Health Guide," reports that a walk of just an extra mile per day for 365 days is a "simple, pleasant device for shedding an extra pound of fat."

In a year this would mount up to about ten pounds. The extra mile means just that—a mile of walking in addition to the customary walking you now do each day.

Once regarded as a major factor in losing weight, physical activity is today rated less important. It was realized that considerable effort was required to shed even one pound of extra tissue. Would be reducers found comfort in some expert opinion that calories expended through exercise would be immediately replaced, due to an automatic increase in appetite.

Fortunately for fitness as well as for fatness, exercise has been restored to grace and enjoys respectability. Exercise helps expend calories; within the usual range of activity, it need not stimulate appetite excessively. The energy output required to offset a pound of fat is approximately 3,500 calories, but the weight need not be lost all at once.

Instead of the exhausting, often impossible, 36-mile hike within a span of hours, a walk of just one extra mile a day for 365 days will get rid of that extra pound. Weight gain usually is relatively slow, and the extra mile will-for most of us-help keep our exercise down to a reasonable figure.

Exercise also furthers physical, mental, psychological, and social fitness. It provides an outlet for emotional tensions, promotes self-confidence, wholesome social activity, and good sportsmanship. It enhances the sense of general well-being that enables us to confront and master a redefining regimen.

To be effective for both weight reduction and for general physical conditioning, exercise must be a regular part of your way of life, and not something that is overdone sporadically.

So, if you want to lose ten pounds in the next year, just arrange to walk that extra mile today.

Walking Catfish Danger To Alabama

Conservation Director Joe W. Graham expressed concern recently about the possible damage done to the state's fishery resources by the importation of the so-called "walking catfish."

Graham urged every Alabamian to assist conservation officials in keeping this particular fish out of Alabama until proper studies can be completed to determine the effects of the species on the native fish population.
